THE UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA STAFF BULLETIN

EDMONTON, ALBERTA

AUGUST 15, 1974

A structural analysis of Athabasca Hall has shown that the building has fulfilled its term of service to the University. Yet those who believe in the preservation of old landmarks may find it symbolic that the former residence today houses a department without which the day-to-day business of the University would grind to a halt.

That department is Special Services, cloistered behind the postal wickets and mail chutes in the building's south basement wing. Mail delivery is one of its most visible functions: who on campus would not recognize the men in green trousers, gold shirts, and peaked caps? The other duties, when listed together, comprise a hodgepodge that defies any title other than the catch-all "Special Services." But each of these services, taken individually, is valuable to the faculty or department for which it is performed.

Special Services was established in the late 1960s by MURRAY COOKE, Director of Personnel Services and Staff Relations. It is managed by JOHN VOGELESANG, who describes it as a centralized assistance bureau.

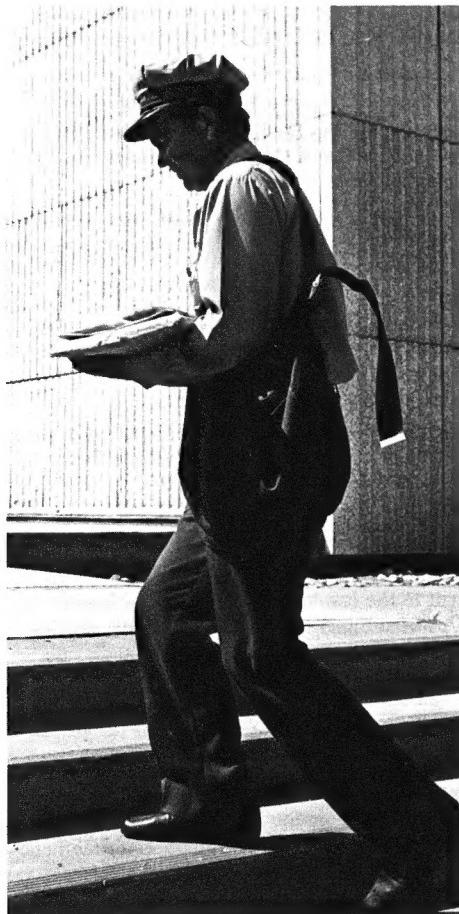

A staff member planning a seminar or conference can spend half a day at a number of other departments to arrange for printed programs, transport, housing, meeting rooms, and special equipment; or he can phone Special Services, explain his requirements, and let them do the legwork.

Intending no harm, Mr. Vogelesang says his view of the absent-minded professor is based on his years as head of Special Services. He specializes in making last-minute meeting arrangements.

"Special Services is important," he says, "because it can deal with academics whose academic responsibilities often cause them to forget about the mundane, physical things they need: tables, chairs, chalkboards, etc. We simply help academics to be practical."

The department also provides messenger service, carrying blood, urine, milk samples, and mail to laboratories and offices on and off campus. In 1972-73, 800 messages per month were collected and delivered; in 1973-74 the number rose to 1,100 per month.

Special Services staff also are involved in the arrangements for registration, and they assist at convocations. They see that facilities are readied for examinations and assume responsibility for the shredding of leftover exams, as well as other confidential papers that are to be discarded.

A peak of seven and one-half tons of mail often are handled by Special Services per day. The department employs 38 permanent and five hourly staff members. Mr. Vogelesang attempts to have each employee trained in all phases of Special Services work, using postal strikes and the increasingly rare slack periods for this purpose.

Of all the services provided to the 100-120 outlets that use Special Services, postage metering is the only one for which the users are charged. Any staff member who requires assistance on a project related to education may call on Mr. Vogelesang and his staff and receive that assistance free of charge. Now that's service.

NOTICES

CHILD CARE CONFERENCE

A conference on "Program Evaluation in Residential Treatment Centres: The Promises and the Problems" will be held at the Chateau Lacombe in Edmonton September 16 and 17. The conference is sponsored by the Alberta Association of Child Care Centres and will be the first of its kind in Alberta and probably in all of Canada. It is designed to familiarize conference participants with concepts in program evaluation and to provide them with in-depth knowledge of current practices in the residential treatment centres in Alberta.

Featured speakers will be MICHAEL GIAMATTEO, Director of the Sylvan Institute of Mental Health and Family Services, which has offices in Washington, Oregon, California and Hawaii; and JOSEPH RYAN, Senior Consultant to the Planning Secretariat of the Cabinet, Government of Manitoba.

Registration forms may be obtained from the Alberta Association of Child Care Centres, 8421 101 Avenue, Edmonton T6A 0L1. The fee will be $15 if the registration form is returned before September 7, $20 after that date. Student registration is $10.

SATURDAY MORNING MOVEMENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Educational Services of the Faculty of Physical Education is offering two twelve-week movement education sessions for children between the ages of three and eight years during the coming academic year.

Session I will be held September 21 to December 7. Three classes will be held each Saturday morning, each divided into two groups: Group A, three to five years; Group B, six to eight years. Class I will be held between 9 and 9:45 a.m.; Class II between 10 and 10:45 a.m.; and Class III between 11 and 11:45 a.m. All classes will be held in the Education Gymnasium, the Education Centre. The fee will be $10 per session.

For further information and registration forms, call 432-3652.

NOMINATIONS SOUGHT

The General Faculties Council Nominating Committee is seeking nominations for a person to serve on the Selection Committee for the Chairman of the Department of Surgery. The regulations governing the composition of selecting committees for department chairmen require that one member, not a member of the department concerned, be elected by General Faculties Council.

Nominations also are being sought for a member to be elected by General Faculties Council to serve on the Review Committee for the Chairman of the Department of Linguistics.

Those who have suggestions for nominations or who are interested in serving on the above committees are requested to contact the Secretary of the Nominating Committee, MRS. P. CAMPBELL, 2-1 University Hall, telephone 432-4965.

CORRECTION

The list of academic promotions published in the July 18, 1974 issue of FOLIO should have stated that B.T. STEPHANSON is Professor and Chairman of Agricultural Engineering (and not of Agricultural Economics as was listed). FOLIO readers who retained the list for future use are asked to make the appropriate correction to their copies.
